Notes From the Executive Director

I am honored and excited to be serving you as IASNR Executive Director. Zhao Ma (IASNR Secretary), Courtney Flint (IASNR Treasurer) and I have been working hard with Jessica (formerly Burk) Hill at IASNR, IASNR Council members and volunteers, ISSRM 2018 hosts Rick Krannich and Jordan Smith, and Society and Natural Resources editors Linda Prokopy and Tasos Hovardas. We are ensuring that IASNR, ISSRM, and SNR are moving forward successfully and meeting our goals regarding serving you, our members. This newsletter details some of our efforts, including Rick and Jordan’s work planning an excellent ISSRM 2018. To learn even more about IASNR’s work, please come to the IASNR Awards and Business Meeting at 5:00 pm Thursday evening during ISSRM 2018 – it is open to all IASNR members. All ISSRM attendees automatically become an IASNR member.

I want to thank outgoing IASNR Executive Officers Matt Carroll, Gene Theodori, and Joan Brehm for doing such a great job over the last four years. I also thank outgoing Council members: Student Representative Elect Anne Junod and our new Professional Council Members Carena van Riper, Rich Stedman, and Steve Daniels. Mysha Clarke has shifted to IASNR Council Student Representative this year. She and Anne co-chair the Student Affairs Committee.

Courtney, Zhao, and I are working with IASNR Council to better understand how IASNR is doing and what we can do better. Our plan is to establish a short list of priorities to focus on this year along with long-range budgeting and work plans. We want to provide our members with excellent value to ensure that you renew your IASNR membership every year, whether or not you attend ISSRM. You can help us ensure that we reverse declining membership trends and help make IASNR stronger. You can also help us understand what we can do to be the best professional association we can be – what needs we can help you meet over the course of your career by contacting me at kehalvor@mtu.edu or catching me at ISSRM 2018.

IASNR is an international organization with members from around the world. However, we need to do better in terms of ensuring that our leadership and volunteers parallel our global membership distribution. Please consider being nominated to run for one of our three professional member council slots or our student representative elect position – more details are included in this newsletter and you can contact info@iasnr.org with questions. We especially encourage nominations of IASNR members from outside the U.S. I am also working with IASNR committee chairs to identify volunteer needs and we will be coming back to you to ask for volunteers to help us with specific tasks. And don’t forget to follow us on Facebook (International Association for Society and Natural Resources) and Twitter (@info_iasnr). See you at ISSRM 2018!
Call for IASNR Council Nominations — Deadline Extended to April 30, 2018

Dear IASNR members,

Submit your Council nominations before it is too late. We strongly urge you to nominate suitable colleagues for one of the four IASNR Council positions listed below. Submit your nomination(s) by Monday, April 30th.

* IASNR Council Professional (3 seats)
* IASNR Council Student Representative-Elect

Don’t miss this opportunity to nominate your recommended candidate(s) for the IASNR Council!

Service on the IASNR Council affords members the opportunity to contribute substantially to current operations and future directions of the organization. IASNR strives for the organizational leadership to be “broadly representative of the membership, reflecting a balance of: (1) disciplinary orientations in the social sciences; (2) natural resource management fields; and (3) professional practice” (e.g., academic, agency, and NGO scientists; resource managers; domestic and international; mid-career and seasoned). Interested individuals must have familiarity with the organization, evidenced by a history of active involvement in ISSRM and/or other IASNR activities. Additional information regarding eligibility and responsibilities of these positions is included below and available on the IASNR website (www.iasnr.org) under the “About IASNR” section. All IASNR Council positions are unpaid voluntary positions.

IASNR COUNCIL POSITIONS

The IASNR Council consists of nine professional members, one student representative, and the co-editors of the journal as ex-officio members. The Council serves a broad role in supporting IASNR objectives to (1) foster the interdisciplinary social scientific understanding of the relationships between humans and natural resources; (2) further the application of social science information in natural resource decision-making; and (3) provide mechanisms whereby social scientists, resource managers, practitioners, agency personnel, and decision makers can generate dialogue and useful exchange of ideas. Council members are expected to actively engage in Council activities, including participation in Council meetings, service on Council committees, thoughtful and timely response to Council communications, attendance at ISSRM and any IASNR-supported activities at ISSRM, and infusion of new and innovative ideas in support of organization objectives. We especially encourage nominations of IASNR members from outside the U.S.

Council Professional Positions

The term of service for professional Council members is three years (January 2019 to December 2021). Nominees for professional Council positions must have been an IASNR professional member for a minimum of one year prior to the beginning of service on Council. The same individual may be re-elected for a second term, but no member may serve more than two terms without an interval of at least three years off Council.

Council Student Representative-Elect Position

The term of service for the Student Representative on Council is two years (January 2019 to December 2020) – serving one year as Student Representative-Elect, then transitioning the following year to serve one year as Student Representative as the primary liaison between the Council and Student Affairs Committee, for which the Student Representative and Student Representative-Elect serve as co-chairs. We strongly encourage nominees to have at least two years remaining before the completion of their graduate degree because the term encompasses a full two years. Nominees for Student Representative-Elect must have been an IASNR student member for a minimum of one year prior to the beginning of service on Council. The same individual may not be re-elected for a second term.

NOMINATION INSTRUCTIONS

IASNR members may submit one or more nomination for each open position (self-nominations are not allowed). Nominations must include the following: (1) nominee’s name, title, affiliation, and contact information; and (2) a brief supporting statement (e.g., highlighting past IASNR or ISSRM involvement, describing relevant experience or qualifications). Nominations should be sent by email directly to the Elections Committee (c/o Tom Fish@nps.gov) and “cc” to info@iasnr.org no later than Monday, April 30, 2018. Please include “IASNR Election Nomination” in the email subject line.

Elections will be held in May, with notification of results at the 2018 ISSRM. Official duties will begin 01 January 2019, following a six-month transition period as non-voting observer. Note: The ‘service year’ for IASNR Council positions corresponds with the organization’s fiscal operating year, 01 January to 31 December. Contact the Elections Committee with any related questions.

Thank you for your continued support of IASNR.

Elections Committee Updates

Submitted by Tom Fish:

Election season is upon us once again! This time we will hold elections for four IASNR Council positions – three Council professional positions, and the Student Representative-Elect.

Service on the IASNR Council affords members the opportunity to contribute substantially to current operations and future directions of the organization. IASNR strives for the organizational leadership to be “broadly representative of the membership reflecting a balance of disciplinary orientations in the social sciences; (2) natural resource management fields; and (3) professional practice” (e.g., academic, agency, and NGO scientists; resource managers; domestic and international scholars; mid-career and seasoned professionals). The organization relies on this group of dedicated members to bring their knowledge, experience, energy, and ideas together to lead IASNR over the coming years.

We look forward to receiving your nominations for Council positions, and are counting on all members to vote in the election in May. Please visit the IASNR website to view the “Call for IASNR Nominations.” Nominations must be received no later than Monday, April 30th. Inquiries regarding nominations and elections should be directed to the Elections Committee.

Society & Natural Resources Journal

Submitted by Tasos Hovardas and Linda Prokopy, Editors-in-Chief:

Three months into our official term as Editors-in-Chief, we are busy moving journal articles through the review process as quickly as possible. We are extremely grateful to our dedicated Associate Editors for their immense help in this process:

We have also added a new group of scholars in an Editorial Board. Editorial Board Members have all committed to reviewing up to 10 articles a year for the journal. This will create a pool of potential Associate Editors and enlarge the community of practice around Society & Natural Resources. We are also hoping this helps relieve the burden on the Associate Editors to find reviewers and helps to speed up the review times.

We intend to review our Associate Editor and Editorial Board Member lists twice a year. If you would like to be considered as either an Associate Editor, Editorial Board member, or a reviewer for the journal, please contact us: Hovardas@ucy.ac.ay and lprokopy@purdue.edu.

The first six issues of the journal for 2018 have already been published online (including a special issue edited by former Editors-in-Chief, David Sonnenfeld and Peter Taylor on Society & Natural Resources in an Illiberal World) and there are additional articles “in the queue” that are available online: https://www.tandfonline.com/loi/usnr20.

Happy Reading!
In Memorium — Donald R. Field

Early Saturday morning, April 7, 2018, University of Wisconsin Professor Emeritus Donald Reed Field passed away. He is survived by his wife of 55 years, Nancy H. Field, children Peggy, Andrew, and Donald Jr., six grandchildren, and a large extended family. Beyond the joys these family members brought to Nan and Don, they are a lasting signal of the core traits this couple instilled in each person they came into contact with – honesty, love, commitment, faith, and will to move forward. Thankfully, Don’s ability to impart such traits was not restricted to bloodlines – it extended to a legion of students, colleagues, and indirect progeny. All who studied with, worked alongside, or otherwise were blessed to interact with him felt his grace, and profited from his wisdom.

Professor Field served in many capacities and roles throughout his distinguished career, including as an Assistant Professor at South Dakota State University and then at the University of Washington (where he was promoted through the ranks to Professor), Chief Scientist Pacific Northwest Region of the National Park Service (where he also served as the agency’s first Senior Scientist in Sociology), and Professor of Forest Resource Management at Oregon State University. He spent the last 23 years of his career at the University of Wisconsin where he served as Associate Dean of the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences, Director of the School of Natural Resources, and Professor of Rural Sociology and Forest and Wildlife Ecology. Taken together, these positions provide a penetrating glimpse into Don’s creative life-space – he traversed the intersections between the natural sciences and social sciences as had few before him. More importantly, he erected some of the first bridges to creating a transdisciplinary framework for addressing the many wicked problems assailing the natural resource-human interface.

Don Field’s work in natural resource sociology is foundational. His research findings appeared in many of the leading journals published today, and along with his numerous books, book chapters, and research monographs remain core to current work in the areas of leisure studies, rural sociology, and natural resource social science. The enduring importance of his contributions is in part reflected by the numerous awards he received over the course of his career, including a Fulbright Fellowship to Griffith University in Brisbane, Australia, the Department of Interior’s Meritorious Service Award, the Theodore and Franklin Roosevelt Award for Conservation and Recreation Research from the National Recreation and Park Association, the George Hartzog Award from the National Park Service, the Lifetime Achievement Award from the International Association for Society and Natural Resources, the Award of Merit from the Natural Resources Research Group of the Rural Sociological Society, the Distinguished Rural Sociologist Award from the Rural Sociological Society, the Outstanding Alumnus Award from Penn State, and election as a Fellow of the Academy of Leisure Sciences.

Field’s level of engagement with and contributions to the creation of professional networks and organizations is unparalleled. He served as an elected Council member, Secretary, and Vice-President with the Rural Sociological Society. His creativity and sense of purpose led him to actively pursue the development of new outlets and organizations that brought natural resource and social scientists together. He served for six years as co-editor of the recreation resource-based scholarly journal Leisure Sciences. He organized the first International Symposium on Society and Resource Management in 1986, and continued to play a lead role in nurturing and organizing the ISSRM symposia for the next quarter-century. Based on research papers from the first Symposium he launched Society and Natural Resources in 1988, and continued as the journal’s co-editor in chief until 2003. In 2001 he led the creation of a new professional association, the International Association for Society and Natural Resources, and served as IASNR’s founding Executive Director from 2002 to 2005.

Don Field’s life was devoted to bringing people with different agendas together to address the pressing issues facing our nation’s natural resources. He infused a passion among all he worked with to add to and apply social science knowledge in ways that would enhance both natural resource conditions and social well-being. He will never be far from our hearts, or our minds.

A memorial service will be held on Saturday, May 12, 2018 at St. Bernard Catholic Church in Middleton, Wisconsin. Visitation will be from 9:30-11:00, followed by Mass at 11:00 am. A reception and sharing of memories will follow.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests that those wishing to honor Don’s legacy consider a contribution to a newly-created endowment fund that will be established in his name within the International Association for Society and Natural Resources. The goal of this fund will be to create a permanent endowment that can be used to help underwrite costs of student participation at future ISSRM symposia, on an ongoing basis. Checks in support of the “Donald R. Field Student Assistance Fund” should be made payable to IASNR, and forwarded to:

Dr. Courtney Flint, IASNR Treasurer
Department of Sociology, Social Work and Anthropology
Utah State University
Old Main 216G

If you would prefer to donate using a credit card, please contact Dr. Flint (courtney.flint@usu.edu) and she will assist with that process.

Ethics Committee Updates

Greetings, members of the Ethics committee are excited to support the IASNR by carrying out fair and timely investigation of matters related to violation of IASNR ethics code. We aim to foster a welcome environment where members can freely express and exchange ideas with mutual respect and trust.

Recently, a new committee was formed for the year of 2018. The committee is chaired by council member Neelam C. Poudyal and includes two council members (Erin Seekamp and Carena J Van Riper), a member of Student Affairs Committee (Anne Junod) and a non-Council IASNR member (Tobin N Walton). The committee had its first meeting on March 23, 2018. At the meeting, the committee reviewed a complaint regarding a potential ethics violation and submitted recommendation to the Executive Director for further consideration. In addition, the committee has identified a number of issues regarding investigation and enforcement of violation complaints, which will be discussed in future meetings and necessary changes will be recommended to the council.

The Committee urges all members (new and existing) to review and abide by the IASNR code of ethics, which is available by clicking here.

As always, the committee appreciates your respectful and ethical conduct in both formal and informal venues of the IASNR.

The 2018 International Symposium on Society and Resource Management (ISSRM) will be held June 17-21 at the Snowbird Ski and Summer Resort in the Wasatch Mountains of northern Utah. With approximately 500 participants expected to attend, dozens of organized sessions, four full days of paper presentations and a variety of social activities on the agenda, this promises to be among the best-attended and most exciting symposia in the history of our organization!

Located just a 30-minute drive from the Salt Lake City International Airport, Snowbird is an easily-accessible, family-friendly, and stunningly beautiful conference venue! Information on the resort and the many on-site summer recreation activities available there can be accessed at www.snowbird.com. In addition to the amazing scenery and outdoor amenities offered immediately around the conference venue, Snowbird also provides easy access to many major U.S. National Parks and National Monuments – ten National Parks are located within a day’s drive or less!

Highlights of the 2018 ISSRM

- A keynote address by Jamie Redford, co-founder of The Redford Center, an organization addressing social and environmental issues through relatable stories, impact films, and campaigns that lead to positive change.
- A screening of the film Happening, produced by The Redford Center and premiering on HBO later this year, which focuses on the economic and social benefits of clean energy.
- Additional keynote addresses by renowned tropical ecologist Nalini Nadkarni and environmental sociologist Tom Dietz.
- Pre- and post-conference field trips to some of the central Wasatch mountains’ most spectacular summer outdoor recreation destinations.
- Symposium activities will begin on Sunday, June 17, with the Student Forum and several off-site field trips. The opening reception scheduled for that evening will provide a fun opportunity to enjoy food and drink, renew old acquaintances and meet new colleagues.
- The conference will continue with a full slate of presentations and other sessions as well as social gatherings extending throughout the day and into the evenings on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. A closing social Thursday evening will provide an opportunity to relax, enjoy a sunset in the beautiful Wasatch mountains, listen to live music, and spend quality time with both old and new ISSRM friends.

You can find all the information you need on the conference website. And don’t forget to make your airline and hotel reservations now – the symposium dates are rapidly approaching! Click here for more information on lodging.
We look forward to seeing everyone at Snowbird in Utah for ISSRM 2018! Looking ahead, we are also excited to announce the 2019 and 2020 meeting plans.

- ISSRM 2019 will be hosted at the University of Wisconsin Oshkosh in Oshkosh, Wisconsin, USA, June 2-6, 2019. The theme will be “Sustainability and the Land Ethic in the Anthropocene. Located in the heart of the Upper Midwest along a unique river and lake system, Oshkosh is near “Sand County”, home of famed conservationist and scholar Aldo Leopold. This will be a fantastic setting to convene “a thinking community” around contemporary global issues in society and natural resources.

- ISSRM 2020 will be held in Cairns, Australia, June 23-26, 2020. The theme will be “Re-creating Landscape and Culture in a Time of Global Change”. The conference will be held at the Pullman Cairns International Hotel in the tropical city and capital of the Far North Queensland region of Australia. Close to two World Heritage areas – Great Barrier Reef and Wet Tropics World Heritage Area – this setting is sure to be a fantastic destination for an international gathering focused on changing relationships between culture and landscapes and more.

Who to Contact:
If you have questions about the Symposium, the preparation of the proposal, or wish to express interest in preparing a proposal, please contact any member of the ISSRM Site Selection Committee:

Communications Committee Updates

We want to share some exciting updates from the newly staffed Communications Committee! According to the IASNR Operations Handbook adopted and amended in 2017, the primary role of the Communications Committee is to facilitate open and timely communication among IASNR members, between members and IASNR leadership, and between IASNR and the general public. The Communications Committee also manages IASNR Council files and keeps governance documents up to date. Currently, the Communications Committee is co-chaired by Zhao Ma from Purdue University (zhaoma@purdue.edu) and Kristin Floress from the U.S. Forest Service (kfloress@fs.fed.us). Neelam Poudyal from the University of Tennessee (npoudyal@utk.edu), Kathy Halvorsen from Michigan Technological University (kehlavor@mtu.edu), and Jenn Domenech (student rep) from Purdue University (jdomenech@purdue.edu) are committee members. Please feel free to contact any of us if you have any feedback or questions. In particular, we are hoping to strengthen IASNR’s communication effectiveness by incorporating non-North American perspectives. To do so, we are hoping to recruit additional committee members from non-North American institutions and organizations. Please let us know if you have an interest in becoming part of the Communications Committee!

You might ask what the Communications Committee does. We finalized our 2018 workplan and are already making progress! Specifically, we have the following goals, some of which will be completed this year while others will be addressed on a continuous basis. We plan to (1) review and potentially revise the current format and delivery mechanism of Keeping in Touch Newsletter to make it more effective as an organizational communication tool; (2) establish a clear social media presence of IASNR; (3) continue to help and facilitate SNR, Student Affairs Committee, Professional Development Committee and other committees to communicate the value of IASNR, ISSRM and SNR with members and the broader academic and practitioner communities; (4) review and make recommendations for next-step actions to the IASNR Council in terms of organizational branding; (5) manage and organize IASNR web presence, cloud storage, and document sharing mechanisms; and, (6) make sure Operational Handbook is reviewed and updated on a yearly basis.

One of the most exciting updates relates to the newly formed Social Media Subcommittee. Kathy Halvorsen, Jenn Domenech, Anne Junod from the Ohio State University, and John Strausser from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign have been working really hard to increase the presence of IASNR on social media. Currently, IASNR has 600 Facebook followers and 400 Twitter followers. Through the effort of this subcommittee, both numbers are growing steadily. Specifically, this subcommittee is pushing out content via Facebook and Twitter on a weekly basis following three objectives: (1) keeping members informed about IASNR and related events by sending out IASNR/ISSRM/SNR announcements; (2) building broader awareness about IASNR by posting news of IASNR/ISSRM/SNR, posting work of IASNR members, and building synergies with SSWG/AESS; and, (3) adding values to members by posting content that our membership would be interested in learning about and promoting the work of our members. If you have any feedback on what the Social Media Subcommittee is doing or ideas to help boost our effort, please do not hesitate to contact any member of this subcommittee.
The IASNR Professional Development Committee is working hard to coordinate services, activities, and resources to support the professional development of IASNR members, particularly students and those in early career stages, across various professional settings related to society and natural resources. We are focusing our efforts in three areas: (1) expanding career and professional resources on the IASNR website (check out the syllabi we recently added!); (2) planning and implementing professional development activities outside of ISSRM, including a 4/23/18 webinar on publishing and reviewing manuscripts in Society and Natural Resources (the link will be available on IASNR website in case you missed it!), and (3) planning and implementing professional development activities at ISSRM, including mentorship program activities (keep your eye out for an email with information about how to participate!), a networking event for early career professionals, and an event introducing new members to IASNR. Our committee is composed of three IASNR Council members, four general members, and a student member. Please feel free to contact us if you have any questions!

We look forward to seeing you at this year’s ISSRM in Utah! We have some exciting events planned for you. In addition to planning this year’s student forum, we are also working on ways to keep you actively engaged post-ISSRM, stay tuned for those updates. Here are some of the current plans from SAC:

Professional Development subcommittee
(Chair – Jacob Slattery, Michigan Technological University)

We are currently coordinating activities for this year’s Student Forum which will be held on Sunday, June 17th, 2018. This year’s student forum will include sessions and workshops that will provide information and spark conversation about the academic and non-academic job market, networking, writing and publications, and how to create a work/life balance while in graduate school. We will also have an opportunity for you to take professional headshots during the student forum! (See adjacent flyer for more details). Please sign-up by checking the “ISSRM Student Forum” box on your ISSRM Registration Form.

Communications subcommittee
(Chair – Jenn Domenech, Purdue University)

Please remember to like us on Facebook and follow us on Twitter (@info_IASNR) to stay up to date on everything you need to know!
A big thank you to the other SAC committee members:
Professional Development subcommittee – Lauren Duprey, Becca Nixon, Shanice Jones, Jake Hawes, Gabe Kohler
Communications subcommittee – Jenn Domenech, John Strauser, Anne Junod

Finally, please join me in offering a warm welcome to Anne Junod, our new Student Representative-Elect from Ohio State University. Please let us know if you have any questions!

Quiz Bowl

The Quiz Bowl is always a fun event where students compete in a Jeopardy-style format answering theoretical, methodological, and local area knowledge questions. Currently, we have 9 registered university team - the most competitive in ISSRM’s history – and we are really excited! We will provide prizes for the winners, free beverages, snacks, and great entertainment for the participants and the audience! We look forward to a fun evening of friendly competition!
We hope to see you there on Wednesday, June 20, 2018 at 5:00pm.

Here are all of the competitors for this year’s Quiz Bowl!

We hope to see you at ISSRM 2018!

Exciting News from Social Ecology Press!

IASNR has entered into agreements with the University Press of Colorado for distribution of Social Ecology Press books as well as on co-publishing of new books! UPC will handle the marketing and distribution of our books which will give us access to a vibrant and global publishing marketplace. We will be working with them over time to give some of our books a new look and also to archive older versions for open access.

Social Ecology Press books are now available for purchase directly from UPC!

We will establish a new Social Ecology Press Editorial Board in the upcoming year and welcome inquiries from the IASNR membership on all issues related to book publishing.

A Word from The University Press of Colorado:

The University Press of Colorado is excited to announce an agreement with Social Ecology Press, for both distribution of existing books from and copublication of future titles with the International Association for Society and Natural Resources. Social Ecology Press has published accounts of human behavior, natural resources, and the environment for classroom adoption and for the natural resource professional community and UPC is eager to collaborate on future projects.

All previously published SEP titles are now available directly from UPC, or wherever books are sold. Press staff will attend the 2018 ISSRM annual meeting in Salt Lake City and will be available for conversations about future SEP/UPC copublications or book publishing in general. Existing SEP titles will be on display and available for purchase at a discount.

All proposals for new books should follow the UPC submission guidelines, and will be evaluated by the press acquisitions staff, series editors, and/or an editorial board, as well as outside experts. Please write Rachael Levay at rachael@usupress.com with any questions.

Finance Committee Updates

We have a new Finance Committee that is co-chaired by Courtney Flint and Steve Daniels from Utah State University. Members include Rich Stedman from Cornell University and Rudy Schuster from U.S. Geological Survey. The current focus of the Finance Committee is on developing an investment strategy for IASNR and providing oversight for budgeting related to IASNR/ISSRM matters.
